LAMAR'S SPEECH.

DELIVERED ON TAKING THE CHAIR AS PRESI-DENT OF THE DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL CAUCUS, SATURDAY AFTERNOON, DEC. 4TH. Gentlemen :- In calling me to this position of responsibility and distinction you have conferred an honor which I appreciate most highly, and for which I thank you most cordially. We here are confronted with a crisis in the Democratic party of the country which brings to our party grand opportunities, but is at the same time freighted for us with solenn responsibilities; and if we do not improve these opportuities and rise to the measure of these responsibilities the fruits of the great political revolution which has brought us here to-day will be for us like the fruit which grows upon the shores of the accursed sea. The people of this country by overwhelming majorities of States, and majorities in States, have placed the Democratic party, after a long period of exclusion from power, in possession of the most important part of the Federal Government. When I say important, I do not mean that the individual members are invested with imposing prerogatives or great personal distinction. The departments of patronage-those which hold and command the glittering prizes of governmental emoluments and honors -are the co-ordinate branches of the government, which are still under the control of our political opponents. The members of the House of Representatives have no patronage whatever beyond that of the appointment of a military or naval cadet, and their compensation is barely adequate to a republican life of simplicity and prodential economy. There are many offices in the gift of the Executive far more profitable, and in public esteem more distinguished, than that of a seat in the House of Representives; but this branch is, nevertheless, under our matchess system of government, the cornerstone of our fabric of liberty; because it is the only department of the Federal Government directly responsible to the people of the country and receiving its powers directly from their hands. All the other branches of the Government are two or three degrees removed from the people in the mode of their selection or in the nature of their responsibilities. But while the House of Representatives is thus immediately responsible to the people, all the other branches of the Government are responsible to this body. The people of the country have charged us, have charged the Democratic party in the House of Representatives, with the important duty of bringing these co-ordinate branches of the Government to their just responsibility, and thus, by an unerring instinct, or a keen intelligence, have blended together our duty, our interests and our inclinations. There has been for some time in the public mind a conviction, profound and all pervading, that the civil service of this country has not leen directed from consideration of public good, but for those of party profit, and unpatriotic designs. The people demand at our hands a sweeping and thorough reform, which shall be conducted in a spirit that will secure the appointment to places of trust and responsibility the honest, the experienced, and the capable. There is also an imperative demand that a vigilant examination be made into the administration of the revenues of the country both in coltion and disbursement; that all public accounts be scrutinized by us, as it is the solemn privilege and duty of the House to do; and that corruption be ferreted out, and wrong-doers, no matter how high or how low, shall be fearlessly arraigned and fully exposed and punished. There is a growing and irresistible sentiment in the country that under the specious theory of protecting and fostering particular industries and interests, a system of miscalled revenue laws has been in operation, detrimental and blasting to all the other great interests of the country, and maintained at the expense of the general revenue and to the injury of the great majority of the people, and of those classesthe farmers and laborers-who are least able to bear the burden of oppressive laws. One of the highest and most pressing demands upon us will be not only to insist on bringing down the expenses of the Government to the needs We were then a people numbering only three only of economical administration, but to perfeet and adopt such a system of taxation as will bring in the required revenue with the fewest restrictions upon commerce and with the least burden to the people, and that burden equitably distributed and skillfully adjusted.

Owing to the exigencies of one of those great internecine conflicts incidental to the life of almost every country, and also a pernicious system of legislation, our people, our business investments, our commere, and all the diversified interests of the country, are suffering from the evils of an irredeemable currency. In meeting and grappling with the difficulties of this vital and perplexing question, it will be our duly to take care that nothing is done which would Impair the good faith of the country, or tarnish the public honor, or lower or disturb the credit of our government; but we are to remove those obstructions which bar the progress and check the prosperity of the American republic. It is our duty as Democrats, it is the duty and is to be the glory of the Democrat party while ft controls the House, to see that the national debt is paid in full and that the currency of this democratic republic is made equal with that of any nation on the earth. Upon the part of those who have been vested with the political power and destiny of our country during the last ten or fifteen years it has been a frequent remark that the era of constitutional politics had been closed; that questions of constitutional limitations and restric-Islation of the Government in its dealings with gal abolishing slavery in the Cohores.

were, it is assumed, now the only matters worthy an approaching termination of the ru of public attention; and yet amidst their grand conflict which has been raging for several boastings the Forty-third Congress found them- in Cuba. The same disregard of the la selves faced with the gravest questions of constitutional law, reaching down to the fundamental system, and involving not only the re- pressions of condemnation from the nations of lations of the State to the Federal Government, but that of the people and their own home-gov- sad scene. ernment. The grandest aspiration of the Democratic party is, and its crowning glory will be, to restore the constitution to its pristine strength and authority, and, to make it the protector of every section and of every State in the Union, and of every human being of every race, color and condition in the land. Apprehension and distrust of one part of the nation that that portion of the Southern people who were arrayed against the authority of the Federal government in the late war should be an element of disturbance to the American Union has mainly disanpeared, as is evidenced by your election. In its stead has grown a more fraternal feeling, which regards us of the Southern States as fellow-citizens of the same great nation. And, on the other hand, the people of whom I speak, of whom I am one, are here to-day, by their chosen representatives, ready to honor any draft which the American people may draw upon their patriotism or their faith in the glory and the beneficent destiny of American institutions. [Applause.]

The experiment which has been introduced amongst us, based upon confidence in the working of local self-government, and intended to solve the difficulties connected with recent social and political transformations, shall have an open field and fair play. No hindrance shall be placed in the way of its vigorous development and its amplest success. [Applause.] It has been said that the day of sentimental politics has passed away; but, gentlemen, there is one part of this Union-that part which I know best-which asks for the great moral nutriment to a spirited and noble people. We want a Government that we can love and revere, and serve rom the motive of reverence and love. We hunger for a patriotism which shall knit all the people together in a generous and loving brotherhood, and which shall be as broad as the territory over which the national flag floats. Let me say here that no government, no nation, can prosper without this vital fire. It is the eessary." sentiment which, acting upon institutions and reacting through them upon a people, constitutes their public spirit and political genius.

Gentlemen, we are here as Democratic members of a political party which has a long and glorious history. Let us in our duties this winter recall and revive those principles the our country secured for so long a period the Texas." confidence and support of the people. Let us seek to renew the prosperity and advance the greatness and glory of our country. Let us resolve to win the confidence, the affection, of the whole American people for our party by showing them that we, its representatives, have statesmanship, patriotism, and strength of purpose enough to deserve that confidence and af fection. Let us not forget that the great victory of last fall, which brought us here, and which gives us these opportunities and great responsibilities, was achieved not alone by Democratic votes, but with the co-operating efforts of patriotic and unselfish men of all parties who. wearied and alarmed by the unceasing evils resulting from corruption and maladministration. chose to call us to the duty of checking these evils and clearing away these corruptions. If we are wise we shall so rule ourselves and so serve our country as to retain the confidence of

Reforms are urgently needed. Let us wisels make them. A renewed prosperity is everywhere earnestly desired. Let us, by removing unjust discriminations, by imposing rigid economy, by restoring a sound currency, by securing the equal rights of all the States and the people, make the Democratic party the author of a new prosperity, so we may begin for our party a new and glorious career, in which its history should be once more, as formerly, the story of the Union's greatest grandeur and the people's universal happiness and contentment. [Great applause.]

FULL SYNOPSIS PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, December 7 .- The message

"In submitting my seventh annual message to Congress, in the year of our national Centennial existence as a free and independent people, it affords me great pleasure to recur to the advancement that has been made from the time of the colonies one hundred years ago .millions; now we number more than forty millions. Then industries were confined almost exclusively to the tillage of the soil; now manufactures absorb much of the labor of the country; our liberties remain unimpaired; the bondsmen have been freed from slavery, and we have become possessed of the respect of, if not the friendship of all civilized nations."-

Graphic and well-worded details follow: The President earnestly recommends that a constitutional amendment be submitted to the Legislatures, making it the duty of each State to establish and forever maintain her public schools, adequate to the education of all children in the rudimentary branches within their respective limits, irrespective of sex or color, birth-place or religion, forbidding the teaching in said schools of religious, atheistic or Pagan tenets, and prohibiting the granting of any school funds or school taxes, or any part thereof, either by legislative, municipal or other authority, for the benefit or in ald or for the benefit of any other object of any nature and kind whatever. He alludes to the importance of correcting the evil of vast amounts of untaxed church property, and estimates that by 1890, if unchecked, this property will reach a sum exceeding three thousand millian dollars. He would suggest the taxation of all property equally, excepting only the last resting place of

The President makes a long argument and concludes: "A recognition of the independnext presents itself, is that of the question of belligerent rights in the parties to the contest." After further argument, the President concludes: "The recognition of independency as of belligerency, being thus in my judgment, equally inadmissable, it remains to consider what course shall be adopted should the conflict not soon be brought to an end by setions of the parties themselves, and should the evils which result therefrom, affecting all pations, and particularly the United States, co In such event I am of opinion that tions will be compelled to assume the bility which devolves upon them, an ously consider the only remaining possible, mediation and intervent t the same time, while thus impressed. this time, recommend the ado measure of intervention."

this question, and I hope Congress may be induced at the earliest day practicable, to resume the consideration of the act of Coggress at its last session, to bring about specie resumption on and after the first day of January, 1879 at farthest. It would be a great blessing if this could be consummated at even an earlier day. Nothing seems to me more certain than that a full, healthy and permanent reaction cannot take place in favor of the industry and finanmeasure of value recognized throughout the civilized world, while we use a currency not quivalent to the standard of the world's reognized standard. Specie becomes a commodity like products of the soil, the surplus seeking market whenever there are advantages for it. Under our present system we should want none nor would we have any, were it not that custom dues are paid in coin and because of our pledges to pay the interest on our public debt in coin. The yield of precious metals would flow out for the purchase of foreign productions, and leave the United States hewers of wood and drawers of water because of wiser legislation on the subject of finance by nations with whom we have dealing. I am not prepared to say that I can suggest the best legislation to secure the end most heartily recommended. It will be a great gratification to me to be able to approve any measure of Congress looking effectually towards securing the resumption of specie payment. Unlimited inflation would probably bring about specie payments more speedily than any legislation looking to redemption of legal tenders in coin, but it would be at the expense of honor.

There are a few measures which seem to me mportant in this connection and which I commend to your earnest consideration: The repeal of so much of the legal tender act as makes those notes receivable for debts contracted after a certain date to be fixed by the act itself, say not later than the 1st of January, 1877; a healthy reaction would return at once. and with it a desire to make the currency equal to what it purports to be." The President elaborates the good effects which would follow this suggestion. Second, that the Secretary of the Treasury be authorized to redeem say not to exceed $2,000,000 monthly of legal tender notes, by issuing in their stead a long bond bearing three sixty-five hundredth per cent., of dollars each third. That additional power be given to the Secretary of the Treasury to accommodate gold for final redemption either by increasing the revenue or decreasing expense, or both. It is preferable to do both. He suggests that some better means be found for verifying claims against the Government than through the Court of Claims, especially those growing out of the late war; they are in nearly every instance exorbitant. Discussing the report of the Secretary of War, he invites special attention to making three hundred thousand of the subsistence appropriation available before the beginning of the next fiscal year; the repeal of the law abolishing mileage, and a return to the old system.

No sectarian tenets shall ever be taught in any school, supported in whole or in part by the State, nor the proceeds of any tax levied upon any community to make education compulsory, so far as to deprive all persons who cannot read and write from becoming voters after the year 1890; disfranchising none, however, on grounds of illiteracy, who may be voters at the time this amendment takes effect. 3d. Declare church and State forever separate and , at distinct, but each wree within their proper any spheres, and that all church property shall bear its own proportion of taxation. 4th. Drive out licensed immorality, such as polygamy, importation of women for illegitimate purposes. I recur again to the Centennial year. It would seem as though now as we are about to begin the second century of our national existence, it would be a most fitting time for those reforms. 5th. Enact such laws as will secure a speedy return to a sound currency, such as will command the respect of the world. Believing that those views will commend themselves to the great majority of the right thinking and patriotic citizens of the United States,

SHEEP IN ORCHARDS

Having a small orchard of about 90 trees, I have for three years past pastured it with six or eight sheep for the benefit of the trees. Last year being a non-bearing year in this State, I had more apples than all the neighboring farms together. My practice is to plow shallow aleys: "Too much stress cannot be hid were trace years, in order to disturb the surface of which I consider to be against the longevity of the trees, and sow to clover, to be fed one year by the sheep, the next plowed and sowed again to clover,-the sheep kept in another feeding lot till after haying, when the clover roots have gained strength and maturity, so that the close feeding of the sheep will not kill them. Why plow so often is because the trampling of the sheep is apt to mack the ground around the roots of the trees, preventing their bearing. The cial welfare of the country until we return to a sheep eat all the blighted wind-fall apples, which contain the germs of injurious insects, as soon as they fall from the trees; and they distribute their manure so evenly and finely over ground that the rains soak it immediately down to the fine surface of the roots of the trees causing them to bear every year. The sheep should not be kept in too late in the Fal. nor put in too early in the Spring when the grass is dead, as they are apt to graw the bark off the small trees. - New England Farmer.

MELLOW SOIL AROUND TREES.

Unless the surface of the ground is mulched round young trees, over an area of six to ten eet in diameter, the ground should be kept clean and mellow. Every farmer knows that a ill of corn or potatoes will not amount to much unless cultivated, and yet there are many who will neglect to give the same care to a tree which is worth a hundred hills of either of the former. In rich soil, trees may grow rapidly without cultivation, and no amount of grass or weeds will retard them; but there are other things besides growth to be looked after. If the weeds and grass are allowed to grow up around the stems of apple, peach or quince trees, the bark will become soft near their base by being shaded, and thereby be in a suitable condition for the reception of the eggs which will eventually become peach and apple borers. Take any dozen young apple trees in the sections where the apple borer is abundant, and allow a portion to be choked with weeds and the remainder well cultivated, and then watch the result. From our own experience, we believe that the chances are nine to one in favor of those cultivated being exempt from this pest, -Western Farmer.

A PAIR OF MISERS .- Guy the founder of the noble hospital in London which bears his denominations ranging from fifty to a thousand name, was a bookseller. He was so complete a pattern of parsimony that the famous miser, Vulture Hopkins, once called upon him to crave a lesson on the art of saving. Being introduced into the parlor, Guy, as it was in the evening and dark, lighted a candle. Hopkins said: "Sir, I always thought myself perfect in getting and husbanding money; but I am informed you far exceed me, I have taken the liberty of waiting upon you to be satisfied upon that subject." "Oh, sir," said Guy, "if that be all your business, we can as well talk it over in the dark." Having thus said, he put out the candle. This was enough for the Vulture. He took his leave at once.

It is related that an Indian once brought up a young lion, and, finding him weak and harmsavs, is a source of satisfaction. Reviewing less, never attempted to control him. Every day the lion gained in strength and became more difficult to manage. At last, when ex- dison. or our foreign policy demand that we should cited by rage, he fell upon the Indian and tore him to pieces. It is thus with evil habits and tions of constitutional limitations and restrictions were no longer to hinder or delay the legtions were no longer to hinder or delay the legsage of an act by the General Cortes of Portuports combine to make those of other nations perhaps destroy us. A LOVER'S DESPERATION.

SHOOTING THE GIRL WHO HAD REJECTED HIM AND THEN COMMITTING SUICIDE,

[From the Atlanta Constitution.] Dr. Spalding, of Kimball, Texas, writing to his brother, the Rev. Dr. Spalding, of this city,

There is a wealthy farmer living three miles below Kimball, on the west side of the Brazos river, near Powell Dale church. His name is G. D. Greer. He has several brothers living here-wealthy, influential, good citizens. They came originally from Georgia. He had two daughters just grown-Miss Willie, eighteen years old, and Miss Nannie, sixteen-both handsome intelligent, amiable, and beloved by all who knew them. The oldest was an unusually sweet girl. About twelve months ago a distant relative of Captain Greer's first wife, (the girls were children of a second marriage.) Robert Simms, a young stock raiser, passed through here on his way to Colorado, to which place he was driving his herds. Stopping among his relatives, he became enamored with Miss Greer. Whether they were engaged or not is not known. She probably loved him, as perhaps any sweet girl eighteen years of age would love a handsome, fearless, rich young man who might court her love. And yet she feared him. for he had killed a man in a difficulty, so it is said, in the southwestern part of the State. He went away however, wearing her ring and she wearing his. He kept up a correspo with one of her uncles, to whom he seemed to be very much attached. Eight months ago, a young, good-looking Baltimore physician named Frazier, secured board at Esquire Lanes's, the father of Miss Greer, and began practice. He met Miss Greer, courted her, and they became engaged, and were to be married on Nov. 11. On Saturday morning, October 23, Miss Greer came to town to make some purchases. Her father had gone with his cotton crop to Dallas, and was to return that evening with her bridal outfit. On the Thursday before, Bob Simms returned, having received a letter from his uncle stating that Miss Greer was soon to be married. He called on Miss Greer, found out the state of her feelings, chided her, told her they were made for each other and that no other man should ever claim her as wife.

On Saturday morning he gave to a friend with whom he was staying a letter from his sister, saying: "Answer this letter to-morrow if I do not return. I am going up to Captain Greer's and if I never return wind up my business." He went over, and called for Miss Willie, who was with her mother and Dr Frazier, her betrothed, in the sitting room. When asked for, Miss Willie said, "Doctor, have you your pistol? I am afraid of Bob; he said he would kill me. Shall I go in?" The Doctor said, "I am not armed. Go if you like." All three then went in. Simms asked Miss Willie to walk with him in the garden, but she declined. He then asked her to walk out on the back porch, as he wished to have a good bye chat with her. She went and he followed, shutting the door after him.

The mother heard them conversing, and heard him say: "And you are the cause of it;" heard her sob; heard her say, "Oh, don't do that. Bob." Then bang! bang! bang! went his six shooter; then a panse, then bang again. The mother threw open the door. There lay her beautiful daughter, dead, on the porch. One shot entered near the heart, one entered the left eye and came out at the back of her head; the other entered the centre of the forehead and came out also at the back of the head. He must have supported her with his left hand while shooting her. Near her lay Robert Simms. The fourth shot he had fired through his own head, from back to front. The doctor ran out, turned the murderer's horse, and ran to the next house to get a gun. A runner was sent to meet her father, who was a few miles off on the Dallas road, coming home. His agony I hope neither you aor I may ever have. Next day, Sunday, they brought her body here to Kimball and buried it. His body they carried to a graveyerd near Powell's Dale, where it was buried.

A promising young shaver of five or six years was reading his lessons at school one day in that deliberate manner for which urchins of that age are some what remarkable. As he proceeded with the task he came upon the passage, "Keep thy tounge from evil and thy lips from guile." Master Hopeful drawled ort: "Keepthy-tongue-from-evil-and thy-lips-from

"There may be such a thing as love at first sight," remarked a Detroit girl, as she twisted "Iriz" around the curling iron, "but I don't believe it. There's Fred, I saw him a hundred times before I loved him. In fact, I shouldn't have fallen in love when I did, if his father hadn't given him that house and lot."

SALEM, N. C.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1875. On our first page will be found several interesting articles. The address of Col. Lamar, on taking the chair of the Democratic Caucus, and the synopsis of the President's Message will be read with interest.

Only a few points in the message have attracted much attention from the leading press

The New York Herald says: It unfortunately imppens that the subject on which the President is atterly wrong, is the one which he presses with the most vigor and zeal. On the combined religious and school subject, rpon which he lays his chief stress, he is wild, quixotic and utterly absurd. This attempt to introduce religion as a controlling element in our national polities, the zeal with which he flings this firebrand and tries to kindle theological animosities for party effect, is the most mischievous and monstrous violation of fitness and propriety ever perpetrated by a President of the United States.

The New York World says: The school issue does not exist in the condition, the necessities, the desires, or the hatreds of the American

The New York Sun says: This (the religious question) is a congenial topic to him, and affords proof that this thorny subject will be incorporated into the next national Republican platform, and play a part in the coming Presidential campaign. The message will disappoint public expectation on the Cuban question.

The Tribune says: The heaviest portions of the message relate to new questions which have not heretofore been considered, and which there is now no reason for considering as urgent. It is polities-not statesmanship.

NORTH CAROLINA UNIVERSITY .- The Wilmington Journal in alluding to the article published in the Press of last week, from the New York Tribune, under the caption of "The Present Congress," alludes to the general injustice done to North Carolina whenever opportunity offers, and says:

"It does seem as if there was a systematic effort throughout the country to ignore North Carolina and her people and institutions. It is confined to no particular quarter of the Union and is limited to no particular persons or subjects. It pervades all sections and it embraces all persons and subjects.

"The Tribune article professes to give the number of college graduates, and the names of the institutions at which they graduated. THE N. C. INSANE ASYLUM.

Our thanks are due the Superintendent of our State Insane Asylum, for a copy of his report to the Board of Directors for the official year ending Oct. 31st, 1875. We extract from the report the following interesting summary in which the number of cases reported affords gratifying evidence of the usefulness of this humane institution:

Since the opening of the Institution: The cures upon admissions have been 25 per cent. The deaths upon number under treatment have been 26 per cent for the period of twenty

Upon the number of admissions during the present year the following are the results: 1. The cures upon admissions have been 38

2. The deaths upon number under treatment have been 5 per cent.

Of the admissions during the year the cause of disease is reported to have been mental in 15 cases; physical in 17; and unknown in 10 cases. The form was mania in 25; melancho lia in 12; and dementia or imbecility in the other cases. The average ducation before admission of those received is represented to have been more than two years. This is, of course, far short of correctness on account of a want of popular appreciation of the evidences of insanity-the disease often making much progress, and existing for a considerable period of ime before violent manifestations induced its recognition .- Wilson Plaindealer.

Call at Zevely's Store. Eclectic Magazine

FOREIGN LITERATURE. 1876. THIRTY-SECOND YEAR.

The Eclectic reprints the best Essays, Reviews. Scientific Papers, Tales, Stories, Poems and Biographical Sketches from the whole field of foreigh literature, and it commends itself especially to those readers who seek profit, as well as amusement, in solid and healthful literature.

LIPERATURE In the department of general literature, the Ecteric is unsurpassed by any of the literary monthlies. A class of writers contribute to the English Good periodicals such as seldom appear in American Magazines, and the choicest of their articles are reproluced in the Eclectic. Among the writers recently represented in its pages are the Right Hon. W. Glacistone, James Anthony Froude, Matthew Arnold Charles Kingsley, Robert Buchanan, Leslie Stephen.

Arthur Helps, Alfred Tennyson, Thomas Hughs William Black, Mrs. Oliphant, Thos. Hardy, William Morris, Miss Thackery, Mrs. Alexander, and oth ers equally eminent. It is believed that in this department the Eclectic is more comprehensive and complete than any other magazine not exclusively devoted to the subject.— Its articles are written by the leading authorities in Richard Proctor, B. A., Prof. Owen, Dr. W. B. Car-penter, Max Muller, J. Norman Lockyer, Herbert Spencer, all of whom have been represented in re cent issues of the Magazine. BIOGRAPHY. There is no branch of literature more important and, at the same time, more generally interesting than Biography. In this department, therefore, will be found sketches of most of the famous men of the present and past times. FICTION.

In this department the best current literature of ts class is found; comprising occasional serial nov els, but chiefly the short stories and tales, for which the English Magazines are deservedly celebrated. EDITORIAL DEPARTMENTS.

The Editorial Departments are Literary Notices. Foreign Literary Notes, Science and Art, and Varieties. These are second to none in point of freshness variety and interest.

THE SALEM CORNET BAND appeared on our streets on Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock, in full dress, making an elegant appearance. They occupied their neat Band Carriage, drawn by eight gaily caparisoned horses, under the control of that accomplished reinsman, A. Fogle, Esq. The music was good and gave general satisfaction. A handsomer set of musicians are seldom to be seen anywhere.

The Concert in the Court-house at night was an agreeable and pleasant entertainment, although the unfavorable weather prevented many from attending. It will be repeated to-night, (Thursday) at the same place.

In addition to the excellent band music, Ormsby's Quadrille Band, and the Salem Male Quartette Club enhanced the pleasures of the evening with choice selections from the most popular composers of the

FOR THE PRESS.

Sad intelligence to many relations and friends Mrs. SARAH JANE RAPER, wife of Mr. J. M. Raper, and daughter of John and Sarah Spurgin, died in Teaguetown, Davidson Co., N. C.,

She leaves a husband and two children, an aged father and mother, and several brothers and sisters, with numerous friends, who mourn and are sad because of her death. She was a devoted christian, and a member of the Baptist Church at Abbott's Creek. She was remarkable for patience and cheerfulness in all her affliction, for she was a frail, afflicted woman many years. She spoke of her death, some time before, as one would of going home, saying: It will not be long that I shall be here. A few more beats of this pulse and all will be over. She was buried on the 2nd Sabbath in Dec., and a funeral sermon was preached by Elder Wm. Turner.

All the world is full of babies, Sobbing, sighing everywhere; Looking out with eyes of terror, Beating at the empty air. Do they see the strife before them, That they sob and tremble so?

All the world is full of children, Laughing over little joys, Sighing over little troubles, Fingers bruised and broken toys;

Oh. the helpless, frightened babies-

Still they come and still they go.

Wishing to be older, larger. Weeping at some fancied woe, Oh, the happy, hapless children, Still they come and still they go.

All the world is full of lovers, Walking slowly, whispering sweet; Dreaming dreams and building castles, That must crumble at their feet. Breaking vows and burning letters, Smiling, lest the world shall know, Oh, the foolish trusting lovers, Still they come and still they ge,

All the world is full of people, Harrying, rushing, pushing by, Bearing burdens, carrying crosses, Passing onward with a sigh; Some that are, with smiling faces, But with heavy heart below. Oh, the sad-eyed, burdened people, How they come and how they go.

All the earth is full of corpses; Dust and bones laid here to rest; This the end that babies and children, Lovers, people, find at best. All their fears and all their crosses,

All their sorrows wearing so, Oh, the happy silent, corpses, Sleeping soundly, lying low.
